

Since the State of Iowa which generally rolled up from sixty to eighty thousand majority for the Republican ticket became Democratic it is setting the silver producing States an example they would do well to follow. Horace Boies, who became disgusted with Republican hypocrisy and left the party, was nominated for Governor on a free coinage platform by the Democrats and elected, as was the whole Democratic State ticket. Now the Legislature has passed a bill making silver a full tender for all debts hereafter contracted in the State.

A majority of the people of Iowa are sincere in their demand for free coinage, and not only elect the ticket that favors it, but the Legislature aims to put the State on a silver basis. Here in Nevada, where silver is the principal product of the State, the dominant party professes for political purposes to be in favor of silver, but it has not proved the sincerity of its professions, as the dominant party in Iowa is doing. Here the law makes every debt payable in gold coin of the United States, there they propose to make debts payable in silver coin. Here we produce millions in silver; there they do not produce an ounce of the metal. Here the dominant party, while pretending to favor bimetalism, endorses Harrison's Administration; there many who voted for Harrison four years ago have gone with Boies and are now opposed to the Little Man in the White House.

Nevada needs a political shaking up fully as much as old Iowa and Kansas. Our Legislature bodies disregard the will of the people, constitutionally expressed, and refuse in the face of a majority vote in its favor to call a Constitutional Convention to adapt our government to our present circumstances. Last year the expenditures of the Government exceeded the receipts by over $90,000, and, though there is no probability of the revenue being increased, no effort has been made to reduce expenses.

ARMY ETIQUETTE.

General A. W. Greely, Chief Signal Officer of the Army, has not only violated military etiquette but the general orders of the War Department, and is to be tried by Court Martial. General Greely's offense consists in addressing the Secretary of War and members of the Committee on Appropriations of the House of Representatives in opposition to placing the new Bureau of Military Information under the immediate jurisdiction of the Adjutant General's office. In his letter to the Secretary of War, General Greely suggested that if the new Bureau could not be given in charge of the Signal Officer the Secretary himself should retain control of it until General Greely's friends in Congress could look into the matter. In his communication to the members of the Committee on Appropriations General Greely advised withholding the necessary appropriation for the maintenance of the new Bureau until the right of the Chief Signal Officer to its control could be definitely determined.

The general orders of the War Department say "no officer, active or retired, shall directly or indirectly, without being called upon by proper authority, solicit, suggest, or recommend action by members of Congress for or against legislation pertaining to military affairs."

As General Greely's letters were in open violation of those orders and in the nature of lobbying for control of the new Bureau, he is deemed guilty of a serious breach of military discipline, and as he is not popular with the fighting men of the army he is liable to be tried by Court Martial.

THE SUZ CANAL.

The length of the Suz Canal is 92 miles, depth 26 feet, and it is thirteen years in construction. Tolls average $4,300 per vessel; steamers pass through in forty hours. For sailing vessels tolls are provided at a charge of $1,000 extra. The entire cost of constructing the canal was $55,150,000. The Age of Steel says the British Government owns one-fifth of the shares of the canal, having bought 176,632 from the Khedive in 1876 for $1,976,600, being 12 1/2 per cent premium. The coupons having been cut off, the Khedive pays the interest till 1892. The canal shortens the voyage between England and the East by one-third; that is, it enables two vessels to do the same work that would require three by the Cape of Good Hope.

The National Bulletin, published by the Republican National Committee, to furnish editorials and arguments to feather-head editors, says "free silver coinage means the reduction of home wages and employment, and the payment of all remaining wages and employment in dollars worth seventy cents or less," and asks "isn't that a dusty dash to set before King Labor?"

The California Powder Works at Percival were burned yesterday. The explosion destroyed nearly all the buildings. The shock was felt for miles and timbers from the building were picked up two miles away. No lives were lost, but the loss of property is about $20,000.

J. Cotto, an Italian, was electrocuted at Sing Sing Prison, N. Y., yesterday, for the murder of Louis Frankelos in Brooklyn, last July. Cotto's face was horribly discolored and his leg where the electrode was applied, terribly burned.

SILVER MEN ANGRY.

The Situation Not Encouraging for the Passage of the Bland Bill.

WASHINGTON, March 28.—The silver men have understood that a special order bringing in a closure rule would be reported to the House to-morrow, and telegraphed to all their men to be in the House to-morrow. This morning Speaker Crisp informed them that no special order would be brought in unless a majority of the Democratic members of the House sign a petition asking that the closure rule be brought in.

Speaker Crisp was asked by an Associated Press reporter if the reports were true that an order would not be brought in unless a majority of the Democrats signed the petition. He replied: "That's my intention." Then the silver bill will never be brought to a vote? queried the reporter. "I don't know that that follows," replied the Speaker. "They had two-thirds majority of Democrats and may get a majority to the petition."

Mr. Bland, Mr. Pierce and other silver men were seen. Mr. Bland was very much downcast over the news that he might not force a vote on the measure he has worked so long and faithfully for. He admitted the report that the silver bill had met with a serious setback and one which practically meant its death without a final vote was well founded, but said that the matter was not absolutely settled. Mr. Pierce was a little more confident, but he and Mr. Bland would have nothing to do with circulating any more petitions.

Other silver men were expected to get signatures to a petition of the nature suggested by the Speaker, but met with poor success, for, as already stated, twenty-five Congressmen, who have heretofore voted for the silver bill, refused to sign it. Among the members was Compton of Maryland, who not only declined to sign the petition but gave notice that if any closure rule is brought in, he will vote against it. The anti-silver men are exultant over changes in the situation, but pronounced silver advocates are exceedingly irritated and angry and do not hesitate to indignantly protest against the treatment they have received.

Hale & Norcross Suit.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 28.—Attorney Wood returned his arguments to-day in the Hale & Norcross suit. He contended that at this late day the Court should not disturb the uniform and time honored and reasonable rule under which shames and tailings becomes the property of the mills. Even if the mining companies should receive the tailings, they would have a "white elephant" on their hands because of the lack of facilities for working the tailings, and the stockholders of the mine would profit nothing. Wood ridiculed the charge that by a system of defective and fraudulent milling, the mine was despoiled by the Nevada Mill and Mining Co. All possible patents and appliances were used to insure a thorough milling of ore. Fraud, he said, would be impossible, because its successful accomplishment would make it incumbent upon the mill owners to take into their confidence every employee of the mill, from the Superintendent down to the sweep. Wood denied with indignation the charge that Superintendent Williams of the mill had been seen taking midnight rides to Gold Hill with suspicious appearing bags of bullion, the property of the Hale & Norcross, which had been diverted in the interest of the mill owners. At the hour of adjournment Mr. Wood promised to finish in a very few minutes to-morrow morning.

Trial Postponed.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 28.—The trial of J. S. Guliano, charged with the murder of Martin Himes, and picking his remains and then feeding the same to his employees, was set for trial in the Superior Court to-day, but the jury was discharged and the case continued on account of the illness of one of the attorneys, and the other being engaged in an important case in San Bernardino. Judge Conklin said this evening that he would set the time for trial about the middle of May.

Congressional Proceedings.

WASHINGTON, March 28.—In the Senate, after a number of bills of no general importance had been introduced and referred, the Senate went into executive session. In the House, on motion of Dockery of Missouri, a resolution was adopted calling on the Secretary of the Treasury for information as to whether the present capacity of the mints was sufficient to execute authorized coinage. After passage of a number of District Columbia bills, the House adjourned.

Want a Reservation.

CARSON, Nev., March 28.—The Washoe Indians in Nevada are trying to secure enough money to send a representative to Washington for the purpose of securing a reservation for the tribe, like the Pictas have both at Pyramid and Walker lakes. Dick Bender, the smartest Indian of the Washoe tribe, is to-day circulating a petition for signers who will agree to subscribe a certain sum to defray the expenses of said representative. Dick speaks English fluently and on presenting his list, which is already pretty well filled, explains the case in all its branches, with the sagacity of a white man and he says the Pictas had assistance from the Government for many years and the Washoes have never been recognized as a tribe. Prominent politicians are assisting him through Nevada's representatives at Washington.

A Steamer Wrecked.

WESTPORT, Cal., March 28.—Eleven of the crew of the wrecked steamer Ventura were saved. Those drowned were the steward, name unknown, fireman William Strand, first engineer Holland and sailor Peterson. They were unable to obtain a footing on the perpendicular bluff and fell back into the sea. Second engineer James Burns was washed overboard before the vessel struck.

An Unparalleled Case.

CARSON, March 28.—Ernest Frevert, a nine-year-old inmate of the Orphans' Home here, became stone blind about the middle of last week. The following day he became deaf and dumb, and the third day went insane. To-day a rapid change took place, and the boy now shows every sign of recovering his lost senses. The case baffled the doctors and has no parallel.

The Chicago Boodlers.

CHICAGO, March 28.—Just before adjournment for the day the Grand Jury in the boodle cases voted to indict H. Kelly, who besides being a member of the Board of Education, is an ex-member of the State Senate. The indictment voted will not be returned into court until to-morrow. Testimony was given to-day by Ois Jones, who swore to paying Kelly through third parties over $2,000 for contracts.

An Extraordinary Shower.

An extraordinary meteorological phenomenon occurred in the eastern part of this country by the recent fall of about one inch of strange looking snow. It was of darker color than ashes and looked like mill middlings or shorts. This snow when melted makes a muddy water, and when allowed to settle deposits a fine sediment, which to the naked eye presents four different appearances, viz., two powders (one of a gray and the other of a black color), among which are mixed ragged flakes that look like sawdust and others that resemble scales of mica or copper filings.

When seen through a microscope the gray powder appears to be the debris of myriads of broken down, semitransparent cells and fibers. The black powder, which is about five times as coarse as the former and about one-tenth in quantity, appears to be made up of little pea-shaped, buglike animalcules.

The copper colored scales are of hard substance, and when magnified become translucent and appear to be of a fibrous, cellular structure, of a purple or blood-like color, in which are set the little black, buglike creatures before described. This is considered the original life substance from which all the other life is derived. The little ragged, sawdust-like flakes are but the remains of disintegration and look like white, fleshy cellular tissue in which the black objects are set like seeds in a fig. The substance is easily found, as it forms a uniform dark crust, like stratum, with a considerable depth of ordinary move both below and above it. The fall extended over quite an area of country and has attracted a good deal of attention. The matter is no doubt worthy of a thorough scientific investigation. —Lepore (Ind.) Cor. Pittsburg Dispatch.

Boxing with the Bear.

It is said that while at Copenhagen the czar distinguished himself as a boxer, boxing having become the favorite form of exercise of this imperial herculean.

His great difficulty is and always has been to find any one ready or willing to stand up against him and to respond to each blow by a counter one. Neither his Russian brothers nor any dignitaries of his court are particularly willing to oblige him in this matter, as they dread not only the force of his powerful fist, but also fear of incurring his resentment in the event of their responding to his blows.

Indeed, the only man who ventures to put on the gloves with him and to meet him fairly and squarely is his brother-in-law, young Waldemar, the sailor prince of Denmark.

The other day, during the performance of one of Wagner's most wearisome operas, the czar and the prince withdrew to a vacant room and had a good set-to, which was on the point of ending fatally, for the czar's huge fist struck Prince Waldemar's chin with such force as to dash him to the ground, where he lay for a quarter of an hour before the czar and his attendants could restore him to consciousness.

The czar would do well to abandon the gloves, for he is apparently unable to realize the extent of his strength, and does much damage with his sledge hammer blows. Indeed it was a blow such as this which struck his elder brother, the late Czarowitz Nicholas, on the chest, and which enabled Alexander not only to marry one of the most attractive princesses in Europe, but also to become the heir to, and eventually the occupant of, the Russian throne.—Marquise de Fontenay.

Scientific Matters.

The vagaries of brunettes' favors grow. Recently in London the eight attendants upon the bride carried walking sticks of the Alpine sort with Dresden china heads, gifts of the bride, and at another wedding little silver whistles were worn by the maids because the bride bestowed them.—Exchange.

The Exiled Eugene.

Upon her first visit to Paris Eugene's beauty was ravishing. She was likened to a snowflake on a July day; like the fairylike mist that hangs over Niagara; like all that is purest, freshest, loveliest in nature was the impression that she produced upon people. Once at a great ball she was clad entirely in white, of the fleeciest, gauziest, mistiest description, and with a very simple parure of emeralds and diamonds gleaming in her blond hair, looping up her transparent sleeves, and shining on her lovely neck, she was as completely a vision of delight as eye ever rested on.

The remainder of the story is known, and her marriage, her reckless extravagance, the war, her downfall and escape, are tales of history told again and again. She encouraged frivolity and spent money recklessly, perhaps, than any other woman ever did. She was considered to be the best dressed woman in the world. Her wardrobe cost $1,000,000, and her jewels were of fabulous value. She spent $10,000 a day for household expenses. It was the age of gold. She undoubtedly was the cause of her own downfall, but she did many kindly deeds.

She was one of the first to recognize the merits of Rosa Bonheur, and it was by her wish that the talented artist was decorated. Her legacy of woe is un-matched by any woman in history. She is all alone. Her jewels have been scattered to the corners of the earth; her crown is torn asunder, and the precious stones are now used to decorate women she never saw. Her steps are dogged by spies when she steals like a house-breaker into beloved Paris. Her beauty and strength have faded. She has long waited for the end.—Ada Chester Bond in Ladies' Home Journal.

How to Make Good Tea.

A death of a boy, aged seven years ("shock" produced by drinking hot tea without milk), forcibly and sadly emphasizes the particular vice of the ordinary English method of drinking tea. The tea had been left for some time "in the oven to warm," that is to say, it was a strong decoction of tea leaves to which time had been given to extract all the tannin, and which had then been re-mixed with milk. It was then drunk without milk; that is to say, the tannin was not converted into a relatively harmless albuminous tannate by the addition of milk.

It is precisely because our English method of "making tea" from such infusion of tannin, as well of the tea, that it is so injurious to the digestion, and as in this case, when taken in unusual strength on an empty stomach and without milk, becomes an irritant poison. No people who know how to make tea use milk with it—neither the Chinese nor the Japanese; but then the hot water (not boiling) is poured on to and off the leaves at table, and as soon as the liquor becomes of a pale straw color. The pot is always a small china one, and the hot water kettle is brought alongside it on to table.

Half a minute suffices for the first infusion. It is a very grateful and refreshing beverage, this "honorable" tea, in which one sips at frequent intervals in the far east, but of course it would be and is, insipid and not worth drinking if its flavor be drowned by sugar and milk.—British Medical Journal.

Health and Wholesome Dress.

The close relation between health and wholesome dress need hardly be insisted on. It is therefore most satisfactory to learn that a new league is in process of formation which has for its object the reform of women's dress. The reporters of this association believe that it is possible to introduce radical changes into existing modes of clothing without sacrificing what is due to health, comfort or grace.—Lancet, Feb. 12.

WHAT IS SCROFULA

It is that impurity in the blood, which, accumulating in the glands of the neck, produces unsightly lumps or swellings, which causes painful running sores on the arms, legs, or feet; which develops leucers in the eyes, ears, or nose, often causing blindness or deafness; which is the origin of pimples, cancerous growths, or the many other manifestations usually ascribed to "humors," which, acting upon the lungs, causes consumption and death. Being the most ancient, it is the most general of all diseases or affections, for very few persons are entirely free from it.

How Can It Be CURED

By taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, by the remarkable cures it has accomplished, often when other medicines have failed, has proven itself to be a potent and peculiar medicine for this disease. Some of these cures are really wonderful. If you suffer from scrofula, be sure to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. My daughter Mary was afflicted with scrofula, sore neck from the time she was 2 months old till she became six years of age. Lumps formed in her neck, and one of them after growing to the size of a pigeon's egg, became a running sore for over three years. We gave her Hood's Sarsaparilla, when the lump and all indications of scrofula entirely disappeared, and now she seems to be a healthy child.—J. S. CARLISLE, Naught, N. J. N. B.
